THE THIRD SUCCESSFUL EDITION OF THE ENTRETIME TRAIN-THE-TRAINERS PROGRAMME

On the 2nd of December, the last workshop of the third entreTime training programme occurred.

With an optimized dynamic provided by the learnings of the previous two pilots, a group of motivated and committed participants from different institutions and realities worked together towards a more entrepreneurial mindset during eight weeks.

The 3rd pilot was held by five European Institutions, the Strascheg Center for Entrepreneurship, in Germany, Queen's University Belfast in Northern Ireland, Lulea University of Technology in Sweden, J.J. Strossmayer University in Osijek in Croatia and University of Aveiro in Portugal.

More than one hundred registrations, a reserve list of participants interested in joining and participants that weren't selected but asked for access to the platform resources, the first webinar gathered the 35 participants selected. Beginning on the 6th of October, 35 participants joined the international teams and had the opportunity to learn and to share through different formats and resources: from webinars, workshops, project development, MOOCs, LoopMe, with a combination of theory, hands-On and feedback, setting and providing the optimal environment for learning.

Under the spotlight WHAT WAS IT LIKE TO PARTICIPATE IN ENTRETIME?

We tried to collect the main takeaways for both user groups: educators who joined the journey and the entrepreneurial experts who acted as a coach.

ONE TEAM'S JOURNEY....

At the centre of the entreTime programme is the participation in an entrepreneurial team project. In the recent pilot programme, the team "PHANTASTIC 4" worked together to create GO-FAR a new format for executive training in multiple languages aiming at creating a consortium of universities across Europe universities for blended short courses combined with travel experiences.

International, inspiring, refreshing, energizing were the most recurrent adjectives for describing the entreTime experience. All of them are committed to going further with the implementation of the GO-FAR concept and in embedding what they learnt during this journey in their institution.

ONE COACH EXPERIENCE...

The role of the entreTime coach is to facilitate the activity of the team - individuals with different backgrounds and from different countries - in deploying a teaching project to embed entrepreneurship within teaching. She or he has to guide the team and gently tease ideas from them.

To understand more about the coach's experience, we interviewed Alistair Fee, Visiting Professor of Innovation at Queen's University Belfast and strategy specialist within several capacity building initiatives, entreTime expert and coach in all the pilot programmes.
